In 2014, 53.4 million cigarettes and 9,824 kg of tobacco were seized by Revenue officers, which represent an increase on volumes seized in earlier years. The level of seizures in a given year can be affected by the occurrence of one or more particularly large seizure. Revenue is aware that smugglers are constantly looking for new ways to avoid detection, and that it needs to be agile and adaptable in responding to emerging threats. Revenue continually reviews the ways in which it acts against this illegal activity, to ensure that it detects and seizes illegal cigarettes and carefully monitors trends and patterns in the illicit trade so that the response can be adjusted accordingly.

re Tax Policy

Successive Ministers for Finance (Irish Finance Minister) have used tobacco taxation to both raise revenue and deter the consumption of tobacco products.

Pricing Policies & Minimum Excise policies

From 1986 to the end of 2010, the Minister for Health (Irish Health Minister) exercised the powers granted to that Minister under Section 2(1) of the Tobacco Products (Control of Advertising, Sponsorship and Sales Promotion) Act 1978 by effectively setting a minimum price for cigarettes through Regulations. Following legal action by the European Commission (Case C 221/08 Commission v Ireland), the Court of Justice of the European Union found that imposing minimum and maximum prices was contrary to then extant Tobacco Products Tax Directive.

The revised Tobacco Products Tax Directive (now consolidated in Directive 2011/64/EU) enacted in 2010 provided for a Minimum Excise Duty (MED) rate, which was provided for in Irish legislation in the Finance Act 2012 and came into effect on 1 May 2012.

The MED is a minimum level of duty which must be paid irrespective of the price at which cigarettes are sold. At present, the minimum level of duty takes effect at €7.75 per pack of 20 cigarettes. This policy tool can provide an effective floor beneath which cigarette prices cannot fall as cigarette manufacturers may be unwilling to sell cigarettes at a loss for long periods of time.

re implementing Article 6 : The Tobacco Products Tax (Irish excise duty on tobacco products) was increased in both Budget 2015 (effective from October 2014) and Budget 2016 (effective from October 2015). The Minister for Finance (Irish Finance Minister) indicated that such increases were designed to achieve the key public health objective of reducing the consumption of tobacco products, and continuing to deter smoking initiation, partly among price-sensitive cohorts such as younger people.

In Budget 2015, the specific rate of duty on cigarettes was raised from €241.83 per 1,000 to €255.69 per 1,000 while the ad valorem rate of duty on cigarettes was moved from 8.72% to 8.85%. This amounted to an increase of 40c in the price of a pack of 20 cigarettes in the most popular price category, from €9.60 to €10.00. As part of that Budget, the rate of duty on fine-cut tobacco ('roll-your-own tobacco') was increased from €252.22 to €273.18, which was a pro-rata increase to the increase on cigarettes with an additional 50% increase to move the ratio of duty on cigarettes and duty on fine-cut cigarettes towards unity, with a view to reducing the difference in price between these products. All other tobacco products were increased by a pro-rata amount relative to the increase in duty on cigarettes.

In Budget 2016, the rate of excise duty on cigarettes was increased to €271.86 per 1,000, with the ad valorem rate of duty moving to 9.20%. This amounted to an increase in 50c in the price of a pack of 20 cigarettes in the most popular price category, bringing it from €10.00 to €10.50. All other tobacco products were increased by a pro-rata amount relative to the increase in duty on cigarettes.

C215. Have you utilized the "Guidelines for implementation of Article 6 of the WHO FCTC" when developing or implementing policies in this area?

Yes

C216. Please provide details in the space below or refer to section H of the additional questionnaire. Response to this question or to the additional questionnaire is voluntary. <https://extranet.who.int/dataform/655321?token={TOKEN}&=en>

The Minister for Finance (Irish Finance Minister) takes cognisance of the Guidelines for the Implementation of Article 6 of the FCTC in preparing Budgetary strategy regarding the taxation of tobacco products and in providing for appropriate tax administration measures to control tobacco products. In line with the Tobacco Products Tax Directive (2011/64/EU) Ireland operates a mixed system of taxation. In line with the Guidelines, Ireland imposes a relatively high specific component, a relatively low ad valorem component, and a minimum excise duty. With regard to the periodic revisions of tobacco tax levels, successive Ministers for Finance have opted not to index tobacco tax rates, but rather to raise excise duty on a discretionary basis with regard to the exigencies of broader fiscal policy. In eight of the last ten years, Ministers have opted to increase the tobacco products tax, all increases above the rate of inflation. As outlined in 3.2.1.4, the Minister for Finance is aware of the need to ensure a similar tax burden is imposed on all tobacco products. For that reason, duty on fine-cut tobacco has been increased above the pro-rata level imposed on all other tobacco products in Budgets 2012 and 2015. This has brought the ratio of the excise burden on fine-cut tobacco relative to cigarettes from 0.64 in 2011, to 0.69 in 2015. With regard to the apportionment of revenues to tobacco-control programmes, Ireland does provide for the hypothecation of a nominal sum of €168 million of revenue from the Tobacco Products Tax annually to the Department of Health (Irish Health Ministry). Finally, it should be emphasised that Ministers for Finance make tobacco taxation policy with regard to the overall fiscal stance, so that from time to time, revenue raising may be a greater factor when deciding the quantum of any tobacco taxation increase.

C217. If you have any other relevant information pertaining to but not covered in this section, please provide details in the space below.

Quantitative restrictions apply to tobacco products brought into the State from outside the EU or from territories where EU rules on VAT and excise duties do not apply, such as the US or the Canary Islands. Where passengers arriving in Ireland have travelled from these areas, they may bring a maximum of 200 cigarettes or 100 cigarillos or 50 cigars or 250 grams of tobacco into the State tax free. In general, in accordance with EU law, tobacco products tax is not chargeable on tobacco products that are bought tax-paid by a private individual in another Member State of the EU, provided that the products are for the individual's own personal use and not for commercial purposes and are transported in person by that person into the State. However, in accordance with EU Directive 2008/118/EC, Ireland has imposed a quantitative limit of 300 cigarettes on the number of cigarettes which may be brought into Ireland without further payment of excise duty from Bulgaria, Croatia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania and Romania.
